Court Eyes Rights of Detainees

Guantanamo case poses challenge to war on terror

WASHINGTON | The Supreme Court has intervened directly for the first time in the Bush administration's war on terrorism, announcing Monday that it will consider the legal rights of the 660 prisoners held at a U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Until now, lower courts have said the Guantanamo detainees, all of whom are foreign nationals, have no right to demand their freedom in U.S. courts. But in a brief order, the court said it would review that conclusion.

In the 22 months since the prison was established, it has been both a symbol of the administration's hard line against terrorism and a target of condemnation by international human rights organizations.

The announcement sets the stage for a potentially historic ruling in which the court must balance the president's assertion of his constitutional powers as commander in chief against human rights claims that are based in part on international law. CHARLES LANE (AP)

Home Numbers Go Mobile

FCC ruling allows customers to take their digits with them

WASHINGTON | Federal regulators approved rules Monday making it easier for consumers to go totally wireless by allowing them to transfer their home number to their cell phone.

For those who favor traditional phones, the Federal Communications Commission also plans to allow people to transfer their cell number to their home phone.

These rules, which come on top of plans to allow people to keep their cell number when they change wireless companies, are aimed at boosting competition in the telecommunications industry.

Landline companies must transfer numbers within four business days. Cell phone customers switching wireless companies could have new service within 2½ hours.

All the changes take effect Nov. 24 for customers in the 100 largest metro areas. They will apply to everyone on March 24. (AP)

Misplaced Job Listing Stirs Rumors of Draft

WASHINGTON | A routine notice looking for people to serve on U.S. draft boards has prompted a flurry of press reports suggesting the Pentagon may restart the military draft.

Officials denied the reports, saying they were merely looking to replace volunteers whose terms have expired. Confusion arose when someone mistakenly posted the hiring notice on a Pentagon Web site about the war on terrorism, even though Selective Service is not a part of the Defense Department. (AP)

RECORDS

Riding High

Surrounded by a small group of curious onlookers in Warner Robins, Ga., Randall Jones made his run — or rather, ride — for the history books. The 34-year-old professional extreme sport bike rider is shooting for the Guinness World Record for riding the tallest bicycle. Jones's bike stands 12 feet, 2 inches tall, and he used two Huffy frames, golf cart steering parts and skateboard wheels to construct it. He expects to hear from Guinness officials within a month. ## POLITICS

Power Chords

Rock music played lead in giving Hungarian baby boomers the resolve to bring down their communist state, says one of those reformers who today is a government official.

Andras Simonyi, Hungary's ambassador to the United States, spent an hour Saturday night discussing the impact of Western songs on Eastern European politics for an audience of 250 at the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland. (AP)

SPORTS

Rough Surf

If surfers in Sydney, Australia, can't control their tempers out on the waves, then police may have to join them. Surf rage, or surfers' battles over the best swells, has turned into such a problem that the Surfrider Foundation Australia is offering legal advice, warning that police may soon begin patrolling the ocean and posting a code of ethics to educate surfers on etiquette. The Daily Telegraph reported Monday. (AP)

Single Letter, Myriad Meanings

City leaders in Omaha, Neb., are painting the town red to launch a new logo. "O!" in red spray paint was painted on sidewalks at major street intersections Friday in hopes passers-by will spread the word that the city is an attractive tourist destination. The new slogan comes about six months after officials in the city dropped the unpopular, "Omaha: Rare, Well Done." (AP)

Kerry Fires Top Campaign Aide

Democratic senator struggles to gain traction in '04 contest

MARSHALLTOWN, IOWA | Democrat John Kerry shook up his founding presidential campaign Monday, firing his campaign manager as the Massachusetts senator, once the party's establishment candidate, struggled to make up ground on front-runner Howard Dean.

Trailing Dean in the current measures of the race — fund raising, opinion polls, crucial endorsements — Kerry replaced campaign manager Jim Jordan with Mary Beth Cahill, chief of staff to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

The move came less than three months before voters in Iowa participate in the first-in-the-nation caucuses.

"There's a new phase of the campaign now, and I wanted to change the dynamic," Kerry said during an Iowa campaign stop.

The four-term senator entered the race with credentials that appealed to the Democratic elite — decorated Vietnam War veteran, party stalwart, wealthy spouse.

But Kerry has been criticized for running his campaign too cautiously and for not doing much of the necessary nitty-gritty work, such as telephoning potential supporters and fine-tuning his message.

Still No Answers in Flight 587 Crash

Aircraft lost tail fin, plowed into New York borough two years ago

WASHINGTON | Nearly two years after a jetliner plummeted into a New York neighborhood, investigators are still examining why the plane's rudder suddenly began swerving violently, causing the tail fin to break off.

The crash of American Airlines

Flight 587 on Nov. 12, 2001, killed all 260 passengers and crew on the plane and five people on the ground in Belle Harbor, N.Y.

Investigators believe a series of sharp rudder movements caused the plane's tailfin to separate 103 seconds after takeoff from John F. Kennedy International Airport. The Airbus A300-600 had run into turbulence created by a jetliner flying five miles ahead.

Central to the investigation is whether the pilot used the rudder improperly or if the movements were caused by a mechanical problem.

The National Transportation Safety Board said Monday it is examining how the plane's design influences the way pilots operate it.

The Safety Board said it is combing through maintenance records to locate incidents that overstressed an A-300-600's tail. LESLIE MILLER (AP)

Study: Drug May Help Cure Phobias

NEW ORLEANS | Scientists say a pill may help people overcome their worst phobias.

In a small study released Monday, a drug already on the market for tuberculosis helped people who were terrified of heights get over that fear with only two therapy sessions instead of the usual seven or eight.

The study, led by Michael Davis, a professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at the Emory University School of Medicine, was described at a session about unlearning fears at the Society for Neuroscience meeting.

Davis based his work on research that had found the transmission of a certain protein to a brain receptor were critical to overcoming fear.

He found that the TB drug, D-cycloserine, aids the transmission of the crucial protein.

The drug, sold by Eli Lilly and Co. under the brand name Seromycin, doesn't dissolve fear. But in rats, it helped them unlearn fears faster, Davis said.

Since it was already approved for use in people, researchers tested it on 28 acrophobics, people afraid of heights. (AP)

Judge Limits Testimony
In Janklow Crash Trial

Congressman's past car accidents, tickets won't be discussed

FLANDREAU, S.D. | Jurors in U.S. Rep. Bill Janklow's upcoming trial in the death of a motorcyclist will hear testimony about a close call at the same intersection, but not about three accidents and 12 speeding tickets in his driving record, a judge ruled Monday.

Janklow, a former South Dakota governor elected to Congress last year, is charged with manslaughter and three misdemeanors for a fatal traffic accident near Trent on Aug. 16.

His trial is due to start Dec. 1. The manslaughter count carries a possible 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine if he is convicted.

Authorities allege that Janklow was driving a Cadillac at 71 mph in a 55-mph zone and had just run a stop sign at a rural intersection when the motorcycle ridden by Randy Scott collided with the car, killing Scott, 55, of Hardwick, Minn.

Janklow, who did not attend Monday's hearing, suffered a broken hand and bleeding on the brain.

Judge Rodney Steele said the law does not allow testimony about Janklow's driving record, including the tickets and accidents, unless he brings up the subject himself. Including that testimony would do more harm by prejudicing jurors than it would to help the state's case, Steele said.

But the judge said testimony about a near accident in 2002 at the same intersection where Scott died has value that outweighs any prejudice it may create with jurors.

Navy Gives Island Back to Hawaiians

KAHOOLAWE ISLAND, HAWAII | Spotted with patches of dry grass and colored by thorny kiawe trees that thrive in the arid landscape, the red dirt of this former Navy target range supports little other vegetation, and even less wildlife.

But the uninhabited 45 square miles of Kahoolawe are sacred to native Hawaiians who feel the island, untouched by tourists, connects them with the spirits of their ancestors.

Now, after spending 10 years and $460 million to clean up a half century's worth of shrapnel and unexploded bombs, the Navy is returning control of Kahoolawe to the Hawaiians for the first time since the attack on Pearl Harbor.

The transfer will take place on Tuesday, Veterans Day.

The island and its more than 600 archaeological and culturally significant sites are on the National Register of Historic Places. Those sites include houses, remnants of ranches, and a centuries-old quarry.

The island will be set aside for cultural, education and archaeological activities and access to Kahoolawe will be controlled by a state agency. (AP)

U.S. Urges Iraqis to Curb Strikes

Warning from top general part of new 'get tough' campaign

FALLUJAH, IRAQ | America's top general in the Middle East warned community leaders the U.S. military will use stern measures unless they curb attacks against coalition forces, according to an Iraqi who attended the meeting.

Gen. John Abizaid, chief of the U.S. Central Command, delivered the warning Monday to tribal sheiks and mayors in the "Sunni Triangle" west of Baghdad, according to Fallujah Mayor Taha Bedawi.

The warning was another sign of a "get tough" campaign against insurgents, who have accelerated attacks against U.S. and coalition forces in recent weeks.

Israel's Mossad Joins Investigation Of Baby Formula

JERUSALEM | The Israeli Mossad and Shin Bet secret service agencies have joined the investigation of a faulty baby formula that has been linked to the deaths of three infants, an Israeli newspaper said Monday.

The Health Ministry said tests had revealed that the formula of the Israeli company Remedix did not contain Vitamin B1, even though the package said the product included the essential nutrient.

Vitamin B1 is vital for development of the nervous system in babies. Health Ministry officials say more than 20 infants suffered from a disorder caused by a deficiency in the vitamin after drinking the formula, and three have died. (AP)

U.S. Faces $2.2B In Fines Over Steel

EU threatens 100% duties on U.S. imports if tariffs stay in place

GENEVA | The United States faces up to $2.2 billion in European Union trade sanctions after a World Trade Organization appeals panel ruled Monday that U.S. tariffs on imported steel are illegal.

A three-member WTO panel rejected the bulk of the U.S. appeal of an earlier ruling that said duties of up to 30 percent introduced in March 2002 by the Bush administration breached trade rules. The appeals body is WTO's highest tribunal, and the decision is final.

In a joint statement, the countries that brought the case said the United States had "no other choice" but to remove the import duties without delay. The EU said it will impose retaliatory sanctions of up to $2.2 billion by introducing 100 percent duties on some U.S. imports.

When his administration introduced the duties, Bush claimed they were justified to protect domestic steel producers during a period of restructuring. But the complainants said Washington failed to prove that its industry was harmed by a sudden flood of cheap imports — a WTO condition for imposing such duties.

Vatican Wades Into Debate on GM Foods

VATICAN CITY | The Vatican stepped into the charged debate over genetically modified food on Monday, convening a two-day conference on biotech crops.

The Vatican has not said when it will announce its position on GMOs, which some say will have a profound impact on the debate. An endorsement would likely draw praise from the United States, where biotech companies have been extolling the virtues of GMOs, which can be made to resist insects or disease.

But it would no doubt ruffle feathers in Europe, which imposed a moratorium on growing or importing GMOs because of fears about the environmental and health risks, and in African countries, such as Zambia, that have rejected biotech food aid. (AP)

No Sign of Nukes in Iran

U.N. report stops short of ruling out arms activity

VIENNA, AUSTRIA | A confidential U.N. nuclear agency report has found “no evidence” to back U.S. claims that Iran tried to make nuclear arms but cannot rule out such activities because of past cover-ups by Tehran, diplomats said Monday.

Prepared for a Nov. 20 meeting of the International Atomic Energy Agency, the report was less than a clear condemnation of Iran's nuclear activities. Washington says that Iran should be declared in violation of the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty at the November meeting, which could lead to possible sanctions.

Under international pressure, Iran recently gave the IAEA what it said was a complete declaration of its nuclear activities just days ahead of an Oct. 31 deadline. On Monday, it also handed over two letters pledging to sign an additional agreement throwing open its program to inspection on demand by agency experts and announcing it had suspended uranium enrichment. GEORGE JAHN (AP)

German Lawmaker Rebuked

Conservatives want him out of party after comments about Jews

BERLIN | Germany's main conservative party yielded to mounting outrage over an anti-Semitism scandal Monday and leaders said they would seek the expulsion of a lawmaker in parliament who compared Jews with Nazis.

Hohmann

In a speech on Oct. 3, Martin Hohmann said that if the Germans were a “guilty people,” the same could apply to Jews because of their role in Russia's 1917 communist revolution.

Hohmann later apologized and was reprimanded by the Christian Democratic Union. But party leaders in parliament voted to kick out Hohmann on Monday after he refused to distance himself more clearly from his remarks. (AP)

BACK AGAIN: Recaptured inmates sit in front of a wall near the Sao Paulo State Penitentiary. Eight prisoners died in a collapsed tunnel while 32 others were still at large after one of the most daring escape attempts in recent memory from the sprawling prison complex in South America's largest city.

Peace Talks Suspended in Sri Lanka

COLOMBO, SRI LANKA | Sri Lanka suspended direct talks with Tamil Tiger rebels Monday while the island nation's prime minister and president tried to resolve a power struggle.

President Chandrika Kumaratunga last week fired three Cabinet ministers, suspended Parliament and briefly declared a state of emergency because of dissatisfaction with the way Prime Minister Ranil Wickremesinghe was handling peace talks with the rebels.

On Monday, Kumaratunga extended an olive branch, inviting the prime minister for talks. Constitutional Affairs Minister G.L. Peiris said the government must determine who will be responsible for the peace process before talks with the rebels can resume.

The talks are aimed at ending a war that has killed 65,000 people and shattered the economy of this island off India's southern tip. (AP)

Malvo Trial Opens With Jury Selection

Teenage sniper suspect enters 'not guilty' plea

CHESAPEAKE, VA. | As sniper suspect John Allen Muhammad stood trial in a courtroom 15 miles away, jury selection began Monday in the murder case against 18-year-old Lee Boyd Malvo, with his lawyers arguing he was brainwashed by the older Muhammad.

The start of Malvo's case sets the stage for simultaneous sniper trials in separate courtrooms in different cities.

Malvo, wearing black pants and a navy sweater over a white shirt, responded, "Not guilty," in a clear voice each time he was asked for a plea to two counts of capital murder and one count of using a firearm in a felony.

He is accused in the slaying of FBI analyst Linda Franklin, who was slain by a single bullet outside a Home Depot on Oct. 14, 2002.

In contrast to Muhammad's usual stony demeanor, Malvo smiled frequently and occasionally laughed as he conferred with his attorneys. His lawyers plan to pursue an insanity defense.

Malvo's lawyers said Monday that they have subpoenaed Muhammad to testify during the younger suspects' trial, which is expected to last six weeks. SONJA BARISIC (AP)

Prosecution Rests Its Case Against Muhammad

CHESAPEAKE, VA. | Prosecutors called their final witness in John Allen Muhammad's trial after three weeks of emotional testimony from victims and witnesses about the sniper spree that killed 10 and wounded three last fall in the Washington area.

Muhammad

Muhammad's lawyers want the charges thrown out, saying prosecutors offered no evidence that he pulled the trigger in the slaying for which he is on trial. The state contends Muhammad exerted such control over Malvo that Muhammad should be held responsible even if Malvo pulled the trigger.

The defense is expected to begin presenting its case on Wednesday after the Veterans Day holiday.

Plane Strays Too Near White House

WASHINGTON | Air Force fighter jets were scrambled Monday to intercept a privately owned plane that flew too close to the White House, prompting Vice President Dick Cheney and President Bush's chief of staff to be moved to a secure location.

The plane was determined not to be a threat. The president was away at the time, on a trip to Arkansas and South Carolina, and his wife, Laura, had a speaking engagement in Maine.

Cheney and White House chief of staff Andrew Card were moved temporarily to a secure location as a precautionary measure, said spokesman Scott McClellan. (AP)

Man Accused of Killing 2 Officers Is Found Guilty

UPPER MARLBORO, MD. | A man accused of killing two Prince George's County sheriff's deputies was found guilty on Monday of second-degree murder, sparing him a possible death sentence.

James R. Logan, 25, who was also found guilty of using a handgun in commission of a felony, now faces up to 100 years in prison, a spokesman for the Prince George's County state's attorney said.

Logan was accused of shooting two Prince George's sheriff's deputies as they tried to detain him at his parents' Adelphi home last year for a court ordered psychiatric evaluation.

Logan's attorneys argued during his trial that he suffered from paranoid schizophrenia and believed he was a "messenger from God." They argued their client should be acquitted by reason of insanity. (AP)

Oysters Disappearing From Potomac

COLONIAL BEACH, VA. | Only seven waterman have purchased oyster tonging licenses this year from a commission regulating Potomac River fishing. And for the first time in recent history — no one has reported a catch.

"So far this year, there has been a zero harvest," A.C. Carpenter, executive secretary of the Potomac River Fisheries Commission, said Monday.

Last year, about 70 licenses were sold, and 2,200 bushels of oysters were harvested in the Potomac.

Oysters once grew at Swan Point, Cedar Point and stony places on the river bottom. But now, waterman are finding those spots almost barren.

Gang Fight Breaks Out At Ballou

WASHINGTON | A weekend gang altercation flared up again Monday, leading to a melee in the cafeteria of Ballou High School in Southeast.

According to witnesses, a fight that began between two students quickly escalated, involving more than a dozen students.

Bill Wilhoite, assistant superintendent of D.C. Public Schools, said between six and eight contract security officers and a Metropolitan Police Department school resource officer were in Ballou when the incident occurred during a lunch period. The number of students involved prompted school officials to summon additional D.C. police officers.

An unconscious teenage male was taken to Howard University Hospital by ambulance and an MPD officer was taken to Providence Hospital.

Authorities said there were no weapons involved. Police and security officers were determining whether any charges would be filed or any students would face disciplinary action. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

Over 700 D.C. Guardsmen on Active Duty

WASHINGTON | As the nation marks Veterans Day, nearly one in four members of the District of Columbia National Guard are on active duty. Many are supporting military operations in Afghanistan or Iraq, while others are filling in for soldiers at military bases across the country.

More than 700 of the 2,800 members of the District's Guard and the Air National Guard Units are deployed.

The 547th Transportation Company has been in Iraq since April. Its 150 officers and enlisted personnel are the only D.C. Guard unit in Iraq. It was also the only D.C. unit deployed to the region in the 1991 Gulf War. (AP)

Marketers return to door-to-door sales in era of 'do-not-call'

NASHVILLE, TENN. | Now that the national do-not-call list, which went into effect Oct. 1, makes it impossible to reach millions of potential customers, some marketing companies are returning to an old-fashioned alternative: door-to-door salespeople.

A spokeswoman for the D.C.-based Direct Selling Association said although it's a "niche market," direct selling garnered $28.7 billion in sales last year.

Other factors have also contributed to the move: unsolicited e-mail annoys most computer users and spam-blockers make the tactic less effective.

Door-to-door salespeople also can run into similar problems as telemarketers — laws, most of them local, that limit or ban soliciting, such as Rockville Centre, N.Y.'s "do-not-knock" list. SCOTT REEVES (AP)

Tobacco Ads to End in School News Magazines

NEW YORK | Several major tobacco companies have reached an agreement with New York Attorney General Eliot Spitzer to stop advertising in the school editions of three news magazines, Spitzer's office said Monday.

Philip Morris USA, R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Holdings Inc. and U.S. Smokeless Tobacco Co. will remove all tobacco advertising from the school editions of Time, Newsweek and U.S. News & World Report, Spitzer's office said.

Brown & Williamson Tobacco

Corp. also agreed to remove ads from the school editions of Time and Newsweek.

From January 2002 to June of this year, the four tobacco companies together had placed about 120 ads for cigarettes and smokeless tobacco in the three magazines, which all provide free or low-cost copies to school social studies classes and libraries.

The pact comes as part of the national tobacco settlement agreement, which prohibits tobacco marketing that targets youth. (AP)

Passion for the Game

The male soap opera 'Playmakers' scores a touchdown for ESPN

TELEVISION | It has passion and romance, forbidden love and intolerance, medical disasters, criminal acts, addiction and a complicated tangle of loyalties and friendships, job jockeying and betrayal. It's about football — not the game, but the people who play the game.

"Playmakers" is ESPN's first grab for other-than-sports-reporting greatness, a scripted drama about a fictional pro football team, the Cougars, in an unnamed city. And it may be the smartest show on TV.

The conflict that drives the action of this nail-biting male soap doesn't revolve around the games except insofar as their outcome affects the contracts of players on the fringes of their careers. "Playmakers" doesn't demand an understanding of the game any more than "E.R." requires a working knowledge of medicine. The real drama takes place among the cast of characters, and what a cast it is.

The star running back, cocky hotshot Demetrius Harris (Omar Gooding), indulges in his drug addiction with the same full-frontal zest he brings to beating every other player's yardage. D.H., as he's called, stays loyal to the ne'er-do-wells of his old neighborhood partly out of loyalty and partly out of the buzz he gets from being the big, famous fish in a rundown pond.

Thirty-something Leon Taylor (Russell Hornsby), a community pillar with a devoted society wife, resents D.H.'s youth and luck and waits for the ax to fall. Stalwart Olczyk (Jason Matthew Smith) is the team's guardian angel, an earnest linebacker whose wise words most of the men don't heed. A closeted homosexual player endures public and private torment; the coach has prostate cancer; the team manager seethes over trivial duties like getting the quarterback's car detailed; and everyone is a repository of injuries and maladies, kept moving by drug cocktails and intensive physical therapy.

One of the show's strengths is how bracingly it deals with race. Football is the modern version of the World War II bomber team, where cornfed Polish-Americans like Olczyk mingle with 'hood boys like D.H., and the chiseled white quarterback understands the PR duties of society-husband Leon.

The show indulges in a non-stop thumping soundtrack as well as an annoying jittery camera that zooms in dramatically when not much is happening. But these are quibbles. The voiceovers that seamlessly switch from one player's thoughts to another's, detailing the average lifespan of a football player (58), "the grip" that only drugs can satisfy and the lies one tells oneself in order to keep going, are riveting. ## The Bottle Rockets respect, and exceed, their influences

MUSIC | The Bottle Rockets may be the most underrated band on the alt-country scene. While bands like Whiskeytown, the Jayhawks, Wilco and Son Volt got most of the attention in the late '90s, the Bottle Rockets quietly amassed a series of three great albums and Missouri's finest alt-rockers are poised to blow the pop world sky-high.

an EP before slipping a little on 1999's "Brand New Year" and later turning into a Doug Sahm cover band for its 2002 release "Songs of Sahm."

Back with all-new original material on "Blue Sky" (Sanctuary), the group sounds like the Bottle Rockets-lite on songs like "I Don't Wanna Go Back" and "Men & Women" But tunes like "Man of Constant Anxiety," "Baby's Not My Baby Tonight" and "Pretty Little Angie" signal that the boys from Festus, Mo., are laying it down as dirty as ever.

The songs and lyrics on "Blue Sky" sound more personal and less sarcastic than before, which spins the Bottle Rockets into a new realm. Sure, lead guitarist, singer and primary songwriter Brian Henneman always added a few touching numbers to previous albums, but here they're more dominant as the standard barroom ditties fall into the background.

The rollicking countrified rock, tongue-in-cheek lyrics and twangy lead guitar licks from the band's earliest efforts are still here, though there aren't as many. Their presence helps the Bottle Rockets take a step back in the right direction with "Blue Sky." JEFF PUMA (THE HARTFORD COURANT)

Sparkling 'Mosaic': Multimedia at Millennium

"Mosaic" is a multimedia dance performance by Nejla Y. Yarkin and guests, featuring jazz, text and video. Along with pieces choreographed by Yarkin, the group will perform "Chaconne," by the great Mexican choreographer Jose Limon, about the end of the Spanish Civil War and the beginning of World War II.

Roses Are Read: Journalism's Scandal

4 A local teacher and author who's made good by writing about the bad, James McGrath Morris reads from "The Rose Man of Sing Sing: A True Tale of Life, Murder and Redemption in the Age of Yellow Journalism." It's the sensational story of Charles E. Chapin, New York Evening World city editor who handled impending financial ruin unwisely — by killing his wife.

Cutting-Edge Celtic: Solas at Wolf Trap

5 Far from the twee pipes and ethereal vocalese of cheesy "Celtic" groups, the sterling quintet Solas plays with grit and sinew. It's not afraid of expanding its repertoire outside of the boundaries of trad Celticism and into risky but melodically credible covers like Bob Dylan's obscure "Dignity" or Nick Drake's "Clothes of Sand."

Wolf Trap, The Barns, 1635 Trap Road; Vienna; 8 p.m., $18; 703-218-6500.

Solas: unassuming on the outside, risk-taking and trickily talented within.

TV helps edge the adult-film industry into the mainstream

TELEVISION | A new reality TV show asks the question: "Can YOU Be a Pornstar?"

Mary Carey, the porn actress who ran for California governor in the recent recall election, is among the hosts, joining fellow adult-film stars Tabitha Stevens and Ginger Lynn.

Silhouette Productions announced plans Monday to shoot seven one-hour shows, with plans to start broadcasting on iN DEMAND Networks and other pay-per-view channels on Jan. 8.

A group of 28 women will compete for a one-year contract with a major adult video distributor and a cash prize of $100,000.

"It's going to be an R-rated version for pay-per-view," said Silhouette Productions chief executive officer Harry Feingold. "Obviously, there will be outtakes that will be hardcore," which will likely turn up on DVD.

In each episode, four women arrive at a house in Los Angeles for photo shoots, interviews and "surprises," according to Silhouette. Viewers will help pick eight finalists for a 90-minute finale.

The statement promised "uninhibited nudity and sizzling sexuality," while the show's official Web site said it would feature "Real people having real sex!"

Feingold insists the show will take reality television where it has never gone before: "The last stigma today for audiences isn't renting adult films, it's admitting it. This series offers viewers a fun, behind-the-scenes look at the star-making process in a multi-billion-dollar industry." ANTHONY BREZNICAN (AP)

Catfight!: Madonna Loses to Minogue

MUSIC | Australian pop pixie Kylie Minogue dethroned American superstar Madonna as Britain's longest-reigning pop princess after the Australian singer's latest single went straight to No. 1 in the music charts.

The track, "Slow," gave Minogue her seventh No. 1 in Britain — 15 years and nine months after she first hit the top of the charts with "I Should Be So Lucky" in 1988.

Madonna went 15 years and one month between her first British No. 1, "Into The Groove," in 1985 and her last, "Music," in 2000, according to officials at British Hit Singles. (AP)

Now that Minogue is Britain's longest-running pop star, she can buy a bra.

VIDEO GAMES | War is anything but a game.

However, it's a subject that game makers frequently focus on, from re-creations of the Civil War to the latest conflicts around the globe.

Now comes "Conflict: Desert Storm II — Back to Baghdad," an update of last year's "Desert Storm" title from Gotham Games.

The original was no great shakes;

it was clunky, with muddy graphics and less than realistic soldiers.

DSII is a huge improvement, with much smoother game play, better-looking graphics and far more realistic human models.

The game takes place during the first Iraq war. You play through 10 missions, each with a number of objectives which are updated as you progress. You are in charge of either an American Delta Force team or a squad of British SAS soldiers.

Be all that you can be in glorious 2-D.

Each character's specialty comes in handy during each mission. To control your troops, you use the left trigger to open communication, and specific buttons for specific orders. Another button tells the gang to fire at will; a third tells them to remain where they are.

Squad members occasionally seem to lose their minds. Summon the whole squad to your location and one of them will inevitably stand in a doorway while enemies riddle him with bullets.

The fighting is engaging and relatively solid. There's an auto-aim function that will pick out targets you can't even see.

Graphics are bland and often fuzzy, and enemy soldiers all seem to look alike, but details of your squad members are sharp and distinct and weapons effects are solid and realistic.

"Conflict: Desert Storm II" is not perfect, but it is a nice taste of squad-based combat. WILLIAM SCHIFFMANN (AP) spin-off itself, the show would generate "Gomer Pyle, U.S.M.C.," and "Mayberry, R.F.D.," starring Ken Berry.

UNLIKELY HEROES

AMERICAN VALOR (9 p.m., PBS) What do heroes look like? This documentary profiles and interviews dozens of Medal of Honor recipients, veterans of World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War. Remember these guys the next time you have to sit through a mindless action movie starring Steven Seagal or Arnold Schwarzenegger. While some of these heroes resemble movie tough-guys, quite a few look more like Don Knotts or Woody Allen than Sylvester Stallone.

LIGHTS, CAMERA, ACTION

The Action Channel (an offering of Starz Encore) presents a COMBAT! marathon, beginning at 6 a.m. and ending at 6:15 p.m. "Combat!" was a superior war series, really the "Band of Brothers" of its time. It ran from 1962 to 1967 and followed a U.S. Army platoon as it crossed Europe in the months between D-Day and the German surrender.

"Combat!" strived for realism. The cast was even sent to a boot camp before shooting began. The show made a star out of Vic Morrow, who played Sgt. Chip Saunders. Morrow died on the set of the film version of "The Twilight Zone" while shooting a combat scene.

CULT CHOICE

William Holden won a Best Actor Oscar for his part in the 1953 prison-camp drama STALAG 17 (8 p.m., AMC). He also stars in the 1954 Korean War drama THE BRIDGES AT TOKO-RI (10:25 p.m., AMC), co-starring Grace Kelly. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Spurrier Hands Off Duties

Redskins head coach will let assistant keep calling offensive plays

PRO FOOTBALL | Steve Spurrier's ego isn't so big that he won't ask for help from other coaches. He even gave up his treasured play-calling duties in order to get the Washington Redskins offense going.

If Spurrier was indeed on the verge of losing his players' confidence after a four-game losing streak, his flexibility in Sunday's 27-20 victory over Seattle went a long way toward getting it back.

"That's a smart coach," defensive end Regan Upshaw said Monday. "You don't know everything, and it can end up being your own demise."

Last week, Spurrier called Denver's Mike Shanahan to ask how the Broncos coach handles play-calling duties with offensive coordinator Gary Kubiak.

"I sort of asked him, 'How do you do all that stuff?'" Spurrier said. "He said, 'Well, I did about all of it my first three or four years, and then I gave it to Kubiak and all of a sudden we won a couple of Super Bowls."

So Spurrier gave the keys to the offense to offensive coordinator Hue Jackson. The result was the team's second-best scoring output of the season. It worked so smoothly that Jackson will keep calling the plays until further notice. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Familiar foe: William Gildea reports that the Washington Redskins will be seeing a former teammate, Stephen Davis, on the opposite sideline Sunday | Today's Post, Sports

Ravens' QB Boller Likely Out for Year

PRO FOOTBALL | Baltimore Ravens rookie quarterback Kyle Boller likely will miss the rest of the season with a leg injury.

Boller tore his left quadriceps in the first half of Sunday's loss to the St. Louis Rams. The injury could require surgery, although even in a best-case scenario he will be sidelined for at least six weeks.

He was on crutches at the Ravens' training complex Monday.

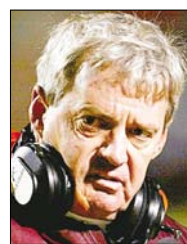

There is a chance Boller could return in late December, although Billichick said there's also a chance the quarterback will be placed on injured reserve as soon as Tuesday, sidelining him until next year.

Kyle Boller is sacked in the Ravens' loss to the St. Louis Rams Sunday.

The injury occurred in the second quarter of the Ravens' 33-22 loss, either when Boller banged knees with Baltimore fullback Alan Ricard or upon being hit while rolling toward the sideline. (AP)

Berroa, Willis Named Top Rookies

PRO BASEBALL | Kansas City shortstop Angel Berroa beat New York Yankees outfielder Hideki Matsui in the closest AL Rookie of the Year vote in 24 years. Florida pitcher Dontrelle Willis won the NL award.

Berroa

Berroa received 12 first-place votes, seven seconds and seven thirds for 88 points in balloting released Monday by the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Matsui got 10 firsts, nine seconds and seven thirds for 84 points.

It was the closest vote since the BBWAA adopted the current format in 1980, a year after Minnesota's John Castino and Toronto's Alfredo Griffin tied with seven votes each. Berroa and Matsui each were picked on 26 of 28 ballots.

In the NL, Willis received 17 first-place votes and 118 points, easily defeating Milwaukee outfielder Scott Podsednik, who got eight firsts and 81 points. (AP)

Before Season Begins, UConn Is Team to Beat

COLLEGE BASKETBALL | Last season ended with a Big East team as national champion. This season starts with another Big East team at the top of the poll.

Defending NCAA champion Syracuse has three starters back, but Carmelo Anthony — who as a freshman was the Final Four MVP — will be missed by the Orangemen.

Connecticut has enough back from last year's 23-10 team to earn the No. 1 ranking in The Associated Press' preseason poll. Junior center Emeka Okafor and guard Ben Gordon may be the best inside-outside combination in the country.

No. 22 Pittsburgh returns as conference champion without point guard Brandin Knight and coach Ben Howland, the architect of the Panthers' resurgence.

Off the court, the 14-team Big East returns to a one-division for-

AN EARLY LOOK The Associated Press released its preseason poll Monday:

- 1 Connecticut (67)
- 2 Duke (3)
- 3 Michigan State (1)
- 4 Arizona
- 5 Missouri
- 6 Kansas (1)
- 7 Syracuse
- 8 Florida
- 9 North Carolina
- 10 Gonzaga

mat this season.

Then come the changes starting with the 2004-05 season as Miami, Boston College and Virginia Tech leave for the Atlantic Coast Conference, while Louisville, Marquette, DePaul, Cincinnati and South Florida make the move from Conference USA. JIM O'CONNELL (AP)

In Brief

PRO FOOTBALL Knee Injury Could Sideline Shockey for Rest of Season

New York Giants tight end Jeremy Shockey might miss the rest of the season with a sprained knee. He will not need surgery but the recovery is six to eight weeks, coach Jim Fassel said. An MRI on Monday showed a partial tear of the posterior cruciate ligament. Fassel refused to say which knee Shockey hurt, although it appeared he was favoring his left knee Monday. (AP)

DOPING Snitching Could Reduce Bans

Athletes who tested positive for the designer steroid THG could get reduced bans if they provide information on anybody involved in a doping conspiracy, the sport's governing body said Monday. The International Association of Athletics Federations has a rule allowing reduced sanctions for athletes offering "substantial assistance" in a doping inquiry. (AP)

Health & Fitness

BALANCING ACT: Pam O'Donnell prefers a bouncy blue ball to an office chair.

On the Ball

FITNESS | Some office workers are pushing aside their regular chairs to sit on exercise balls, allowing them to get a little workout into their work time. The inflatable balls, typically the size of a big beach ball but made of tougher plastic, have migrated to offices from health clubs and physical therapy clinics.

"What we are trying to promote is active sitting versus passive sitting," said physical therapist Cheryl Soleway, a consultant to Ball Dynamics of Longmont, Colo., which sells the products.

"You get a low level of neuromuscular activity — your abdominal and trunk muscles are contracting to some degree," she said. "Without that activity, you would fall off."

However, she conceded there are many unknowns in the physiology of ball sitting as an office exercise. "I'm not sure anybody has spent a lot of dollars researching this."

The lack of armrests, back support or other attributes of a chair helps her pay more attention to posture, said Pam O'Donnell, director of member service for the International Health, Racquet and Sportsclub Association, who gave up her office chair for a ball. "It makes me sit up straight," she said.

Sitting on a ball at work should improve muscle tone, but a risk of injury could await people who do it for a full day, said Dr. Henry Goitz, chief of sports medicine at the Medical College of Ohio. "Twenty minutes is good, 30 minutes is great, but eight to 12 hours, some time in that span, you may have fatigability," he said. IRA DREYFUSS (AP)

I'd like to find a gym that's accepting of the extremely unbuff.

If you're a woman, the chain Curves for Women is known as being extremely forgiving of soft-bodies who wear big floppy workout clothes. There's no equivalent club for guys, though the YMCAs I've used, even the fancy one downtown, are pretty un-intimidating.

What if you don't know how to use any of the equipment at the gym? I can't afford a personal trainer, and the staff at my gym are too busy checking each other out to be bothered to show me the machines.

Demand some service! You're paying for this gym, so ask (politely at first) for at least one introductory run-through. If they resist, remind them (you can get a little less polite here) that you are paying for the membership. Take it up to management if necessary, and if you still get nothing, find another gym.

Forward Thinking

A new service sends cell phone calls home

CELL PHONES | Why not have your wireless calls automatically ring on your home phone whenever you're there?

The unique FastForward service from Cingular Wireless promises to do just that, rerouting all cellular calls to your home number whenever you drop your mobile handset into a $40 cradle that doubles as a phone charger.

When you put your phone in the cradle, the device prompts your cell phone to send out a message informing the network that you are home and that all wireless calls should be forwarded to your landline.

If you also want to use FastForward in the office or somewhere else, you can program up to three forwarding numbers into your cell phone, then flip a small switch on the bottom of the cradle to designate your location accordingly.

When it's time to leave the house with your freshly charged cell phone, you press a "cancel" button on the cradle so all calls can be routed to the mobile number again.

The device works with nearly all of the current Motorola and Sony Ericsson handsets in the Cingular lineup, as well as all four Siemens phones, but only two Nokia models, the 6340 and 6340i.

SPEAK EASY

The benefits of FastForward are many and obvious, such as:

- A landline offers better phone reception indoors.
- Since your forwarded call will ring wherever you have a phone, there's no need to scramble to find a ringing cell phone.
- None of those hefty per-minute charges that most wireless companies charge to forward a call from your cell phone.

The service costs $2.99 per month but is free for anyone who also buys local or long-distance telephone service from Cingular's corporate parents, BellSouth Corp. or SBC Communications Inc., and pays for everything on one bill.

ROB PEGORARO's column appears Sundays in The Washington Post. He chats every other Monday at 2 p.m. on washingtonpost.com/liveonline.

Can you go over any inadequacies of the disc-burning software Apple ships? Is there any third-party software that has the "packet switching" option, so we could use CD's like 650MB floppies?

Yes, Panther treats any disc as a one-time recording medium — you get one chance to copy data to the CD or DVD, and making any further changes requires erasing the disc and starting over. That's completely primitive. Third-party software isn't any help, and apparently that's Apple's fault to some extent: Last I talked to Roxio, they said they would need some OS-level changes before they could even start to implement packet-writing.

I am in need of a new TV. Should I swallow hard and pay the higher price for a digital/HDTV model or purchase an analog model to use until things become standardized?

Consumers are being asked to spend huge amounts of money while manufacturers and movie studios keep changing the rules on how things will work. At this point, I'd probably stick with getting a good analog set, which will cost much less than a DTV of any stripe. If you do decide to make the DTV plunge, try to minimize your investment.

Letters

TO THE EDITOR

THE PIECE "WIN LIKE A WOMAN"

(Nov. 10) stated that "women often are less adroit at winning better salaries, assignments and jobs — either because they don't ask or they cave in when they do."

This statement places blame for disparities in advancement and compensation on women without acknowledging that women must be more adept than their male counterparts in salary negotiation because of gender inequality. Since an average woman still earns only 76 percent of the salary of the average man, it is clear that the work of women and men is not yet valued equally.

Yes, women benefit from improved negotiation skills. Women, and all people, also benefit from acknowledgment of structural inequality and demands for increased fairness in the workplace.

—KATIE BOLZ
Washington, D.C.

THE CHILD IN QUESTION in the Ballou High School contamination had access to the mercury only because the cabinet was not locked. Why isn't anyone addressing that? There is a reason hazardous things are supposed to be locked away.

Horoscope | Stella Wilder

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — You've been trying too hard to second-guess the opposition recently, with questionable results. Focus instead on your own immediate progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — A combination of lofty dreams and harsh reality will provide you with a new kind of inspiration that can bring remarkable results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Prosperity looms ahead of you. You'll be inspired to achieve something more as a result. Don't cut family ties.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — There may be more important things for you to do than work. Don't try to get out of anything that really can't wait.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Try something out of the ordinary and that special someone is almost sure to come calling. Take care you are not over-zealous.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — What happens to you in unplanned, unfamiliar situations will provide you with much new information from which you can learn volumes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You can keep things humming while keeping the likelihood for success very much alive. If it's something you want, it's within reach.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You can save more money even as you plan to spend more in the near future. Preparation is the key to increased financial stability.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Take care of those around you. You'll receive the care you need when the time comes. Remember — no man is an island, especially now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You can hang on through even the most difficult times simply by trusting in your abilities and your keen, insightful instincts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You have not been aware of the dangers currently facing you. You'll come face-to-face with a challenge that changes your outlook.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You may be trying to change someone's mind at this time, but you'll have to work harder at it than usual. You'll come upon some stubbornness.

MALVO TRIAL

Live Online

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

JERALYN MERRITT, a criminal defense lawyer, was online Monday to discuss the jury selection process on the first day of the trial of sniper suspect Lee Boyd Malvo.

With Malvo pleading not guilty by reason of insanity, what will the prosecution have to prove to consider him sane? Or does the defense have the burden of proof to consider him insane?

Malvo's lawyers have to prove he did not understand the difference between right and wrong. They will try to show that he did not understand the nature and consequence of his actions. They will also try to show that he was unable to resist committing the acts due to the influence and mind control that John Allen Muhammad held over him. Insanity defenses are very tough to prove.

Does Malvo have to testify about what happened? Can the prosecution or defense doctors who examine him testify about whether he says he was the triggerman?

Malvo does not have to testify at his trial. He retains his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination. The judge has ruled that his admissions to the police that he was the triggerman can be used against him. The psychiatrists will be allowed to testify about the details of their examination of him.

What type of person do you think the defense will try to pick for jury selection?

The defense will be trying to "life-qualify" the potential jurors. They will ask probing questions about the jurors' attitudes towards the death penalty, looking for those jurors who might vote for life if they find Malvo was not insane and is guilty of the charged crimes.

OPERA

Sing a Song of Springer

Talk show host JERRY SPRINGER turned up in London for the West End premiere of his namesake opera on Monday. Though "Jerry Springer — The Opera" ran for months at London's National Theatre, Springer hadn't seen it in person since its early days at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival. He wholeheartedly approved of actor Michael Brandon, who as Springer shares the stage with Satan, the Klan and numerous trailer denizens. "He has the real physical sense of me," said Springer. ## TRIBUTES

Stamp I Am

Coming March 4, 2004: A 37-cent commemorative stamp celebrating the life's work of Pulitzer Prize-winning author THEODOR GEISEL, otherwise known as Dr. Seuss. The stamp will be released in La Jolla, Calif., as part of the "Seussentennial: A Century of Imagination," a yearlong celebration beginning on what would have been his 100th birthday. (AP)

MADE FOR TV

Smart Trounces Lynch

Forced to choose between a prisoner of war and a bizarre kidnapping, Americans narrowly chose the latter. CBS's "The ELIZABETH SMART Story" was seen by an estimated 15.7 million viewers on Sunday. NBC's "Saving Private Lynch" scored 14.9 million viewers, Nielsen Media Research said in a preliminary estimate Monday. (AP)

In the eponymous opera, Springer sings with diaper fetishists and even Jesus.

DEALS

Token Conservative Watch

PBS, frequently in the crossfire for a perception that it leans left, has hired conservative commentator TUCKER CARLSON as host of a weekly public affairs program. Carlson's untitled program, to be produced by WETA-TV in Washington, is expected to launch next June. The bowtied commentator will keep his job on CNN's "Crossfire." Carlson, whose father once ran the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, is aware of the perception that PBS is liberal but said he didn't know whether he's being brought in for political balance. On his plans, Carlson said he's aiming for something more compelling than the "eat your peas" television of most public affairs shows. (AP)

SECRET RUMORS

Just Look on Google

A former royal servant has come to the defense of PRINCE CHARLES, supporting his denial of rumors that have created mounting controversy in Britain even though they cannot be reported. More than a week after the rumors became the subject of a legal case, few in Britain know details of the allegations made by former royal valet George Smith. A court order forbids reporting on the alleged incident involving Charles and a royal servant. But in any case, it "simply could not have happened," says another former servant, Simon Solari. "The prince of Wales does not have breakfast in bed. It did not happen in my day, anyway," he said.
